

"Undoing The Bully"

Conversation, Planning, and Action that Works.

Facilitated by Award Winning Producer and Motivational Speaker
Sean McLeod

In light of all the recently acknowledged Suicides in communities and on college campuses around the country, school districts everywhere are faced with instantly having to seriously address "Bullying" in their student populations. A perfect complement to any discipline policy, "Undoing the Bully" is an incredible tool in the fight to making school communities SAFE. Adding this program to your Bullying Action Plan could supercharge your currently established design. As a celebrated African American speaker Sean's presence screams diversity and buy-in for audiences. His skill to quickly fly past differences which sometime are represented by his color captures groups immediately.

The undeniable ability Sean McLeod has to engage a multi generational group or, an easily lost student body in a school assembly is uncanny. As a World Class Performer, Conflict Resolution Expert and Motivational Speaker, Sean is the real deal. Leading audiences by using his life stories growing up black, poor, and even being a male dancer -at a time in which "boy's dancing" could destroy your public school status- Sean gets you to the real talking points. A master of the Martial Arts and Conflict Resolution, Sean McLeod helps Superintendents, Principals, Teachers and Parents communicate incredibly well with each other and with their kids.

Simple conversation, easy understanding, and action steps that are clear are his trademarks. Sean is not an expert that takes his position over yours, he's the kind of facilitator that makes your opinion valid, and then helps create a bridge to an action that all the adults in the room can move on.

Reaction to Sean's Approach

I am a nurse practitioner and have worked with high risk urban youth in the city of Rochester NY for over 15 years. My specialty is adolescent medicine and providing care to underserved populations. I am acutely aware of the hardships, abuse, and lack of family support that many impoverished urban youth endure. I have suffered from my inabilities as a primary care provider to break through those walls. I have seen many mental health professionals voice the same frustrations. In my experience it is a rare and gifted person that is able to truly impact the lives of these young people. Sean McLeod is one of these people. What he accomplished in a few short days is nothing short of miraculous. I have written grants and developed programs with accomplished mental health providers implementing Best Practice programs. I have yet to see outcomes rival those of Mr. McLeod.

Comparing outcome data on who participated in Mr. McLeod's program could provide compelling evidence of great interest to several professional communities.

It is my hope you will embrace the uniqueness of this program.

To those considering work with Sean McLeod:

I wanted to share my knowledge and feelings about Mr. Sean McLeod and his expertise in interacting with the youth and adults in our community. I have had the distinct privilege of knowing Sean for several years and have been to many seminars and conferences at which he talked or gave presentations. Sean is an excellent speaker/presenter. When Sean talks about how different members of our society interact with each other and how all people can get along through dialogue, not physical action, everyone listens and understands. Sean has a unique way of communicating with all the members of his audience. He communicates through true compassion and dialogue. I believe Sean would be an outstanding presenter for a bullying conference or presentation. I personally witnessed Sean interact with a young man whose life was on a spiral downward. The interaction took place in my Sheriff's Office with Sean and an inmate in the Cayuga County Jail. Sean and this inmate had a great discussion and shortly after this conversation, which was very professional and giving, this inmate was released and has not been in any type of trouble since. I am convinced that the reason is that he understood, and more importantly, "believed in" what Sean told him about life and that his choice of living positively is his choice alone to make.

In closing, Sean speaks from his heart which makes his audience believe and trust in what he tells them.

Sincerely,
