MUSICAL THEATER WORKSHOPS

The Next Step Musical Theater Workshops brings an awesome brand of Motivation, Character Education, and Life Practice Drills into the High School and Middle School environment through Musical Theater Workshops. Working in concert with Character Education Programs, Parent Groups, and Drama and Music Directors, Award Winning Producer and Motivation Expert Sean McLeod reaches students while offering lessons in Musical Theater Dance, Acting Evaluation, and Vocal Performance. As has been experience by countless thousands of students in the past 20 years, these are no regular workshops! Sean McLeod gives a remarkable experience, structured to accommodate any skill level. He teaches students to fail with smiles on their faces, but does not allowed them to let that fear turn into, doubt, or self loathing. Sean delicately balances his master classes between teaching the art and discussing the elements of human nature, emotion, and good decision making. You learn more about yourself in just one of McLeod's classes than you may ever expected possible. Somehow, he makes it all make sense.

Through this approach, peer pressure works to the schools advantage, and a whole buildings student body is poised for positive change set into motion by the students themselves.

What Are They Saying:

"Thank you so much again for everything you did this weekend. I feel every parent and child should experience this together, it touched us both so much. All of the things you said in your workshop I have tried to teach my children since the day they were born, but I always wonder how much it really sticks with them. BUT to hear it from a professional, a role model, like you, I'll tell you something, Isy will never forget it. You have given her permission to be herself and love herself, to be okay with failure, to feel safe and to treat others safely. You have given her the gift of compassion and modesty. I am actually crying while I am writing this because you not only were a master teacher this weekend but an inspiration to us all. You are a beautiful person with a beautiful heart and I am honored to have met you this weekend! We will NEVER forget you friend!" Erin, Isy's Parent

"Since your visit last year, nothing has been the same for those who took part in your workshops. As females, we struggle with our identity and body image. As female 'dancers' the issues are multiplied ten fold - and your techniques address this. The result - self-confident, self-assured women by the end of the class. As a teacher, Director of a Company, and as a woman, I connect deeply to your approach to 'accepting the possibility of yes' and communicating that to my students."

Schedule Your Workshop

Workshops can be set up on a weekday evening, offered after school, or scheduled on a weekend. Additionally, you can book full school assemblies in concert with the Next Step Workshops to give a deeper meaning and longer impact to any one approach for reaching the students. With support of the principals office and the drama or music department, the Next Step Musical Theater Project can have a lasting impact on students academically and socially. For students who wish to pursue careers in the performing arts, the experience and networking is undoubtedly beneficial. While there, we can also take questions on College and career choices from students, parents, and school guidance counselors.
